Intern (Women's Leadership Fund) - Boston

Your employer

Naissance Capital, a Swiss investment boutique, identifies outstanding niche investment opportunities in non-traditional investments including hedge funds and special situations with exceptional prospects for capital appreciation. Leading institutional investors and family offices count amongst our clients.

We offer a multi-national, entrepreneurial environment, a high degree of autonomy and responsibility and flexibility in designing your work. Our organization is rapidly developing and therefore imperfectly structured.

Our CEO, R. James Breiding, is at the Harvard Kennedy School until May 2010 and is looking for an assistant.

Your role

Your role will be:

- assisting the CEO with regard to the development of the Women's Leadership Fund.
- arranging and participating in meetings with potential investors, and other allies
- developing and maintaining presentations and documents
- assisting in projects as they arise

Your profile

---

We seek a candidate with the following characteristics:

- motivated self-starter, enthusiastic, strong analytical skills
- an interest in the issue of women in business
- fluency in English (other languages advantageous)
- high level of motivation and ability
- result orientation combined with multitasking and problem solving abilities
- computer literacy (Excel, Powerpoint, etc.)
